Day 4 once again showcased the intensity of the FISU World University Handball Championship. Despite the extreme heat affecting the region and the schedule adjustments introduced to protect athletes, the level of competition remained exceptionally high throughout the day.

In the women's competition, Brazil and Germany shared the points after a closely contested 21–21 draw, while the Netherlands delivered an impressive attacking performance to defeat China 44–34. Spain secured a narrow but valuable 26–25 victory over Czechia, and France continued its strong run with a convincing 39–27 win against Poland.

On the men's side, Croatia claimed an important 33–25 victory over Argentina, while Brazil dominated Lebanon with a commanding 46–5 scoreline. Spain also strengthened its position with a 34–22 win over Czechia. Meanwhile, Poland produced a strong performance to overcome France 35–30 in one of the most competitive matches of the day.

FOCUS ON MEDICAL STAFF

During this competition, players need qualified and responsive medical staff to provide prompt care in the event of any injury or medical emergency. Doctors, first responders, and other healthcare professionals play a vital role in ensuring the smooth running of the tournament.

Their presence guarantees the safety of all participants and allows each team to compete under optimal conditions throughout the competition. In addition, medical teams help prevent injuries by monitoring players' physical condition and providing immediate assistance when needed.

Their expertise contributes to maintaining a safe and professional environment, allowing athletes to focus entirely on their performance.
